Hi Paul,
I talked with someone in the NVA IT dept. a few weeks ago, he said my name had been forwarded to him as a dragon user. I explained that I enjoyed using Dragon and I knew it was making a positive impact on my medical record keeping.

It would definitely make my life easier and I could possibly get home earlier and stay married.

I was amazed at the way Dragon was learning my speech and its way better at spelling medical terms than I am.

Subject: Dragon software testimonial

I invested in the Dragon medical speech recognition several months ago, hoping it would save time charting patients as we transition to a paper-light practice. I have been really impressed with the software. The speech recognition for medical terms shared with human medicine is fantastic. The weakness for veterinary practice often comes with more mundane words such as certain pet food brands and medication/product names that are common in animal medicine but not in human medicine, and some of the abbreviations we commonly use, such as for vaccines. However, it is easy to "train" these items into the speech recognition software. My current system is to jot a few notes in shorthand on a one page AVImark chart print-out that shows the client/patient/appointment information for each patient visit, and later that day, I can speed read my notes aloud into the AVImark medical condition window. I can SOAP the entire day's appointments in 10-30 minutes, depending on how extensive my notes were. This is a huge improvement over typing or creating hand-written SOAPS, which I always dreaded and therefore procrastinated until I had a huge stack backed up for several weeks. I prefer to enter my own notes, as I often think of details to add that my receptionists would not know of, but the system can be tailored to multiple users, allowing other vets or staff members to transcribe. I love it and already depend on it. I'd recommend it to anyone who needs to keep medical records in digital format.

I have worked with Paul and his team with several of my opportunities. The feedback I have received from them has been very positive regarding the ease of use between Dragon and AVImark. When I contact Paul I always get a quick response and find them very helpful.
